NEW CIVIC ERA OF PROSPERITY AHEAD OF CITY OF DAYTONA.

The adoption of the new city charter for Daytona at the election yesterday, which will place at the head of local government a city manager under a commission of seven business men, is one of the most notable victories for this form of government, which is fast spreading over the country, and promises an earnest endeavor on the part of electors of Daytona to bring about a business administration of the highest order, in keeping with the progressiveness shown in other civic lines the past year.

The overwhelming vote in favor of the adoption of the new charter, while not a surprise to a majority of electors, was nevertheless pleasing to those who have waged a strenuous fight for a better form of city government for many years. The Daily News may perhaps be excused for a feeling of exceptional gratification, since this newspaper has carried on the fight for city managerial form of government for the past ten years, in the face of strenuous objection, both at the time of aldermanic form and commission form, when it believed that Daytona was ready for city manager form, and that it would offer this city the best means of impartial, fair and economical municipal government.

The News maintained, in the face of ridicule from some sources that the charter would be adopted by about 4 to 1 majority. The vote stood 430 for and 120 against, almost reaching this prediction.

The ease with which the charter was adopted, however, does not lessen the civic responsibility of electors, both men and women, who have worked for its passage. The choice of men and women who will compose the commission will have a large bearing on the successful operation of civic government under the new charter. No let-down in efforts to bring to this board the best talent in the city may be allowed, or the fruits of the past victory will be lost.

To the women of Daytona no small measure of praise for the passage of city managerial form is due. Exercising their franchise almost to a woman, the result largely depended on this vote, which proved to be largely in favor of the newest form of city government. That this fact calls for at least one woman, and possibly more, on the board of commissioners at the March 7th election is conceded. Equal franchise means equal representation—thus Daytona will occupy the rather unique position of having women on its city board, in charge of city affairs, as should be the case, since a majority of women are as much interested, and in some cases more so, in civic matters than are the mere males.

The result of yesterday's election is more than the mere adoption of a new city charter—it is the beginning of a new era in civic affairs in Daytona which will greatly assist this city in advancement to a point far beyond the present concept.

ASCERTAIN IF SOLICITORS HAVE PROPER ADVERTISING CREDENTIALS.

Editor Daily News: May I ask your co-operation in publishing for me this brief reminder and warning to the Triple Cities business firms and merchants that this is the season when our community is infested by all sorts of schemes to remove money which rightfully should remain and circulate right here at home?

Part of the duties of the office of the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce is to issue credentials to those worthy of consideration by our business men and women, and I again urge everyone doing business within the borders of the Triple Cities to first ascertain if solicitors of money or advertising are properly endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce executive officer before paying money which the community can ill afford to lose through fraudulent schemes and transient peddlers.

I heartily recommend the liberal use of the advertising columns of our local daily newspapers, which not only in the high months but throughout the entire year fulfill the functions of the best community builders we have. The men and women in all lines of business and professions should give first consideration to these mediums which are dependent upon the hearty co-operation of those having services or merchandise to sell, and which at all times promote every good work for the advancement and rapid progress of the whole Halifax Country.

S. B. CROSBY, Executive Secretary,
 Daytona Chamber of Commerce.

HANDLING OF CASE OF DISABLED SOLDIERS IS A NATIONAL DISGRACE.

Many who read this would have died on the battlefields of France, or been permanently crippled, had it not been for the American soldiers now known as "disabled veterans."

They stopped the enemy and his bullets. That shortened the war—ended it before more of the folks back home were drawn into the casualty lists.

The lucky ones who came through the war uninjured are enjoying peace. But the war goes on forever for the disabled soldier.

In most cases, his battle will last until his death.

And it is a battle that he is fighting largely alone.

More than three years have passed since the Armistice. The disabled war veterans, far from enjoying the comforts that are rightly theirs by all laws of decency, again are compelled to fight for fair, square treatment by the national government.

The details of this fight are being told in the news columns of the Daily News.

The situation discloses gross neglect and an almost criminal stupidity in mishandling the disabled soldiers.

It is becoming an old story. And it is shadowed by talk of "national ingratitude."

There is, however, no ingratitude. The American people are fully aware of the tremendous debt they owe their crippled and maimed war heroes.

The American people stand ready to foot the bill for whatever is necessary to give these men a square deal.

Responsibility for this national disgrace is somewhere in Washington.

Pot will call the kettle black. The buck will be passed freely between Congress and the Veterans Bureau.

The unscrupulous will coin political capital out of the situation.

After all is said and done, the real trouble is nothing but red tape and stupidity. It is unbelievable that any American official or representative is voluntarily throwing obstructions in the disabled veterans' path.

What is needed in Washington is a little common sense.

In all the history of our republic there never has been as black a disgrace as the neglect of disabled veterans. The public, refusing to believe that Uncle Sam's efficiency has fallen to zero, demands action, fast and thorough.

so, in civic matters than are the mere males.

The result of yesterday's election is more than the mere adoption of a new city charter—it is the beginning of a new era in civic affairs in Daytona which will greatly assist this city in advancement to a point far beyond the present concept.

"OH, THESE MEN, THEY ARE CATS," SAYS MARY GARDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—"Oh these men," said Mary Garden today.

"They are cats," said Mary, the lovely, having arranged her becoming wine-red lips but at a more comely angle, delivered herself of the further opinion that Muratore, the famous French tenor, was "no gentleman."

It was Muratore who recently announced his exit from the Chicago Grand Opera Company at the end of the present season because of Mary's temper.

Mary, recalling his remark that women were unfit by temperament to run an opera company or anything else, said it was to laugh.

"These men are the cats, not the women," said Mary, waving her swagger stick by way of emphasis.

"All my troubles in my company have been with the men—the women are peaceful."

It was suggested that for the sake of peace she might be planning the feminization of Grand Opera and introduce a novelty in the form of an all-woman cast.

Mary threw up her hands in horror. "Good heavens!" she cried. "That would make for peace you think? Good heavens!"

Making additional comment on Muratore, the prima donna manager said:

"It was not gentlemanly for him to attack a woman. It was not only bad taste but cruel."

"What I really think of him, I would not say."

"No," added Mary laughing. "I could not say it. I'm a lady."

Greatest overhead expense is a roof.

WOMEN SPORTS IDEA IS GAINING IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The American idea of sports for women is rapidly gaining headway in France, despite opposition in certain circles. An instruction has just been given by the new Bishop of Strasbourg, Mgr. Ruch, which will probably have considerable influence in convincing those who still think sports harmful to girls and women.

Mgr. Ruch was chief chaplain of the French army during the war and took great interest in organizing sports for the men. He now argues that since an athletic training was obviously so successful in the case of the men with whom he came in contact it should be equally good for women. He has, accordingly, given instruction that all the societies within his diocese under medical supervision athletics for girls, a he likely to be copied in France.

Mary Pickford as Boy In Picture to Play Next Saturday

The thing that will probably interest the public most about Mary Pickford's "Little Lord Fauntleroy," coming to the Auditorium next Saturday as the feature attraction, is not so much the fact that she plays a dual role in this picture as that she takes the part of a boy.

Little Mary has played a dual role before—in "Stella Maris"—but this will be the first time she has ever appeared as a boy throughout an entire photoplay. While it is true that she has worn masculine garb in some of her previous productions, she did so as a girl masquerading as a boy for the moment only. But in her film version of Frances Hodgson Burnett's story, Miss Pickford is constantly on the screen as Little Lord Fauntleroy or as his mother; in fact, much of the time she is there both as the mother and the little lord, all by the aid of cleverly devised double exposure work of her cameraman, Charles Rosher.

"There are many features," says Mr. Heaton, manager of the Auditorium, "that indicate this not only is Mary Pickford's greatest photoplay, but one of the most remarkable plays ever shown. Without a doubt it is the most appealing story ever screened. It is rich in color and human interest. We see Mary depicting a Fauntleroy who is all boy despite his curly, footless collar and bandy some velvet suits. For a spoiled boy, he certainly does not powerfully impress up at times, much to the amusement of his stern old grandfather and to the chagrin of his adoring mother."

The work Miss Pickford does in the dual role is said to be far the best of her career. Her sympathetic interpretation of the mother part is a startling contrast against her portrayal of the boisterous, mischievous and exuberant boy. It hardly seems possible, according to members of the theater staff who have viewed the film, that these two widely different characterizations could be assumed by one and the same person.

Some of the best character actors in the cinema world will be seen in this picture. Among them stand tall the actor, James A. Murray, Kate Price, Fred Mahabeta, and others. Special music was written for the production by Louis Edwards, who will contribute materially to the presentation being especially prepared by the theater.

The Indiana club met at Comfort Lodge Monday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ross. After a short business session the evening was spent very pleasantly in games and various contests. Blowing out a lighted candle while blindfolded afforded a good lot of fun. As the guests, Miss Dean Walker and Miss Lucille Stahl each gave readings which were greatly enjoyed by all and were responded to by hearty applause. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Funk and Mrs. Van Natta. This club is scheduled to meet again at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ross on Monday evening, February 6, at which time the entertainment committee will be Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Ross and Miss Della Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin T. Ash have arrived from their home in Washington, D. C., and are located for the winter season on Halifax avenue, Daytona Beach. Mr. Ash is a member of many years' experience, and has spent several seasons at the beach.

Seabreeze Election May Find Women In Field for Offices

The regular annual election in Seabreeze for the choice of several committees, mayor and other city officials will be held Thursday, March 15. According to present plans there is a possibility of a woman's ticket being placed in the field.

Because of the fact that a number of enquiries have been made regarding the payment of poll taxes, etc., the following has been prepared, regarding election qualifications: All voters must previously registered and must register.

Registration books will be open at the residence of John W. Williams, 425 Peninsula Drive, Seabreeze, Fla., from Wednesday, March 15, 1922, to Thursday, March 22, 1922, inclusive.

Poll taxes must be paid on or before Saturday, February 18, 1922. All men voters must have paid their poll taxes for the years 1920 and 1921; also all women voters must have paid their poll tax for the year 1921. Poll taxes are paid to J. P. South, County Collector, New Smyrna, Florida. One dollar, two cents, residence, and one dollar for each year required.

Under-age and married certificates can be obtained from J. H. Weatherill, "Seabreeze" office, Daytona Beach, at any time, even up to the date of election, and thereby qualify a voter. Any voter who was 21 years of age on or before December 31st, 1920, is eligible to vote.

Under-age certificates can be procured by any voter, man or woman, who reached the age of 21 years on or before December 31st, 1921.

Frieda Hempel's Limpid Voice Has a Wide Range
"From the simple, heart-rending strains of 'The Last Rose of Summer' and 'Home Sweet Home' to the most elaborate of operatic arias and the varied beauties of Johann Strauss, Frieda Hempel, who has the limpid voice of Frieda Hempel, wrote the music critic of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin after he had heard the world-famous Mecca opera prima donna in a concert that held thousands of listeners enthralled."

As to purity and sweetness of vocal quality there is no separate now before the public that may be said to exist this charming singer in the shade. Her contralto is more than a coloratura, for her voice, dazzling as it is in the local lights which she so skillfully absorbed, has so much of melodic richness and sympathetic appeal that the singer is more than a coloratura and a singer.

The previous records, published of other reviews, show that the singer's voice is a soprano and her wonderful performance, which is straight into the heart of her listeners.

Frieda Hempel and her concert company, including a pianist and a dancer, will be heard at the Auditorium of Daytona Beach on February 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt, who have arrived from Philadelphia and who are located for the season at the Otto Whelan home at Atlantic station, Seabreeze.

The Moore brothers have built a small packing house on the Indian lot, corner of Highway and Highway, for their orange packing trade. They have also cleared up the lot very much, improving the appearance of that corner.

Mrs. Duran, former hotel, fruit punch and cake were served and social intercourse enjoyed. A small purse of money was presented to be used by Mrs. Duran to purchase some books in remembrance of the appreciation in which she is held by her many friends and with hearty wishes for many anniversaries for Mrs. Duran, the guests retired.

It is hoped our people will attend and get information concerning this important project. The date of this meeting was arranged by the committee for the 23rd, but the 20th is the correct date.

SEABREEZE SCHOOL NOTES

The basketball team of the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze school will play the Ormond team tonight at the Ormond school building.

Seventy-five new pupils have enrolled since the first of January. Of this number 29 were boys and 46 girls, and 15 of this number were for the high school, while the balance, which amounted to 60, were for the grammar section.

The highest number of enrollment last term was 412 pupils, while this year the number has already reached 435, with the prospects of it going to 475, or perhaps 500 by the end of the term.

Professor F. A. Braver is very much pleased over the arrival of his son, Mrs. Lottie P. Braver, who plans to spend the balance of the season here.

The boys and girls basketball teams of Seabreeze are looking to play here Friday evening, February 2, while the teams here will go to Seabreeze the following week.

The high school biology class made an automobile trip to Ormond Monday, going up the beach route and returning by the river route, in order to obtain more information and making a close study of birds and sea life. On this trip the class saw and identified 25 different kinds of birds in one hour and fifteen minutes.

This week closes the first semester of the term, and the mid-term examinations and tests will be made Thursday afternoon and Friday.

Florida Racing Club to Meet This Evening

The Florida Racing Association will hold its regular weekly meeting in the Daytona Beach Hotel as a check that evening, and all members and those who wish to become members are urged to be present.

Further plans will be made for the next race to be held Monday, January 30, and it is intended to make it the largest and most successful of the season to date. Already about twenty

THE TIME TO TAKE PEPTO-MANGAN

Congress used 11,562,400 words last session. Placed end to end they would reach around the world 4 times and back to where they started.

Some people never need any medicine at all. They are, as the saying goes, "strong as a bull." They are mighty lucky. Most people need a good tonic once in a while. They take cold, or through overwork or social activity do not get enough sleep; many eat improper food and thus hurt the digestion. It is mighty wise to take Gude's Pepto-Mangan with the meals for a few weeks and build up. You cannot have too much good health. Pepto-Mangan gives you plenty of red blood, and everybody knows that red blood means feeling good and looking good at the time. Sent by druggists in liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

Escapes Through Window as Flames Destroy His Home

Almost suffocated by smoke that filled his bedroom and with his home a mass of flames, S. W. West, real estate man of Daytona, awoke between 12:30 and 1 o'clock this morning just in time to escape with his life through a window of the burning building.

Mr. West's home was situated on the river front just south of the city limits of Daytona Beach and therefore was outside the territory covered by the fire department. However, it is doubtful if the firemen could have done any good as the fire had progressed too far before it was discovered.

Mr. West was alone in the house last night as Mrs. West is in Jacksonville where she had gone to purchase additional furnishings for the handsome six-room stucco structure which had only recently been completed. He spent the evening reading before an open fireplace in the living room and when he retired carefully arranged the fire so that none of the coals could escape to the floor.

When he was aroused from his sleep by smoke and the roaring of the flames it was impossible to ascertain where the fire originated. The fire spread so rapidly that Mr. West was unable to save even his clothing and had to call on his neighbors for a supply of wearing apparel before he could come to his office.

The loss entailed by the destruction of the house and its elegant furnishings, is between $10,000 and $15,000, it is estimated, partially covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. West formerly lived in Port Orange and moved into their new home when it was completed last fall, transferring to it their most expensive furniture, cut glass, china ware and bric-a-brac, much of which it will be difficult to replace.

Aside from the loss of the home and its furnishings the fire seriously disarranges the plans of Mrs. West who had intended to bring back with her from Jacksonville a large party of friends who were to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. West for some time.

Those appointed to compose this commission are: Hon. W. S. Cawthon, Gainesville, state at large, temporary chairman; Cong. Dist. No. 1, Supt. J. E. Knight, Tampa; Prin. R. W. Vanbrunt, Inverness.

Cong. Dist. No. 2, Supt. W. T. Cash, Perry; Prin. F. W. Bucholtz, Gainesville.

Special Sale at Princess Shop to Close On Saturday

The big special sale being conducted by the Princess Shop and known as "The Carnival of Bargains" comes to an end this week, Saturday evening. This sale has made a record in this community for low prices. The merchandise offered has been priced at figures that make one think of the good old days many, many years ago when one could buy wearing apparel and do it without having to save money for a month or two in advance in preparation for the event.

The lines which are being offered by the Princess Shop at greatly reduced prices include a large variety of dresses of different materials, sweaters, sport skirts, sport coats, fur-trimmed winter coats, waists and other articles of feminine ready-to-wear.

The Carnival of Bargains has already interested hundreds of residents of the Triple Cities. The shop has been crowded at all hours of the day since the sale started. But there is no question but what the final offerings will be the best. The attractive dresses which are being presented are hard to find for bargain hunters are surprisingly low in price. It is easy to see the remaining few days of this sale are going to find still larger and more eager crowds taking advantage of the economy here presented.

The Carnival of Bargains has already interested hundreds of residents of the Triple Cities. The shop has been crowded at all hours of the day since the sale started. But there is no question but what the final offerings will be the best. The attractive dresses which are being presented are hard to find for bargain hunters are surprisingly low in price. It is easy to see the remaining few days of this sale are going to find still larger and more eager crowds taking advantage of the economy here presented.

The lines which are being offered by the Princess Shop at greatly reduced prices include a large variety of dresses of different materials, sweaters, sport skirts, sport coats, fur-trimmed winter coats, waists and other articles of feminine ready-to-wear.

INDEPENDENCE OF EGYPT IMPOSSIBLE

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Egyptian Nationalists have decided that while some concessions may be made, complete independence is impossible, it was learned this afternoon.

Announcement was made at 19 Downing Street that the government will support any measures adopted by General Lord Allenby, the British high commissioner, for suppression of the Egyptian boycott.

WINTER RESORTS

HOTEL RIDGEWOOD

Two men widely known in the automobile industry, accompanied by their wives, have arrived at the Ridgewood hotel. They are O. H. McCormack and George S. Behan of Detroit. Mr. McCormack is general sales agent for the Hudson car, and Mr. Behan is the man who designs the bodies of the Hudson cars.

Both Mr. McCormack and Mr. Behan are regular winter visitors to the Ridgewood. It is their custom to come to Jacksonville by train, purchase an automobile there and proceed by motor to Daytona, making their headquarters while making excursions into other parts of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kent, S. Krider Kent and J. Edward Wallace of Philadelphia, who are on their way to Miami by automobile, were guests yesterday of the Ridgewood.

Mrs. J. A. Waite of Toledo, a regular visitor to Daytona during the winter season, again is being cordially greeted by her many friends at the Ridgewood.

The local winter golf colony received two notable additions with the arrival of W. A. Mulvey and A. H. Daly of Providence, R. I., who are again registered at the Ridgewood for the season.

Charles A. Hill of Belgrade Lakes, Me., proprietor of the Hotel Belgrade and one of the best known hotel men of the Northeast, is a guest of the Ridgewood. Mr. Hill was here last eight years ago with the New England Hotel Men's Association, and is strong in commendation of the many improvements made in Daytona since that time.

HOTEL MORGAN

To be obliged to turn away guests is the unique experience that the popular Morgan can lay claim to, for on Wednesday evening every room in this popular establishment was taken and no more could be accommodated. This shows that the hotels here are doing all the business they can handle and goes to prove that the predictions made earlier in the season were right that full houses could be expected before the end of the month.

Many people from the North are registered either for a few weeks or for the season, among them being H. H. Wooster of Walden, N. Y.; C. H. White and wife from Kansas City, who are here for the season. A large party touring the state in one of the Mansuet buses consisted of J. A. Reynolds, Albany, N. Y.; Helen F. Thompson of Park Falls, Wis.; Stella Myers of Chicago; W. S. Cleveland of Jacksonville; Mrs. B. L. Dayton, Silver Lake, N. Y.; H. C. Rodman, New York; T. J. Quinn and wife and Miss J. Kee of Ashton, R. I.; W. Schmidt of Jacksonville; Mrs. L. W. Cordts of Hoboken, N. J.; and A. H. Ackerman of Jacksonville, who after staying for some time, continued their journey further south.

HOTEL ORMOND

The Tomoka Sweepstakes, an annual event in golfdom at Ormond, which started yesterday, brought out the largest field on record for this event. The opening of the Koyo Room at Hotel Ormond tonight will mark the beginning of the hotel season. The room, in its new decorations, presents a very attractive appearance and is a popular gathering place for the cottage colony of Ormond Beach, Daytona and Seabreeze.

Dr. Chas. A. Powers, a distinguished surgeon of Denver, Colo., has returned to Hotel Ormond for his annual sojourn. Dr. Powers has an enviable war record and was decorated by the French government, the Medal Chevalier of the Legion of Honor having been conferred upon him for distinguished and meritorious services during the world war.

Recent arrivals at Hotel Ormond include Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Gunther of New York; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Boyd, Newton, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Jacques, Worcester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jordan, Portland, Me.; Mrs. Robert Ames, North Easton, Mass.; Mrs. H. H. Stouck, Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Merriam, Wheeling, W. Va.; and Mrs. C. N. Merrick, Philadelphia, N. J.

HOTEL CLARENDON

Prominent among recent arrivals at the Clarendon hotel is Miss Angelica L. Gerry, well known in fashion circles of New York and New York. She is accompanied by a maid and a chauffeur.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Gerry rented the launch Helen and journeyed up the Tomoka river to see the alligator in his native lair. This is her first trip to the Triple Cities, although she has visited other sections of the state and she is most favorably impressed both with the Clarendon and the beautiful scenery that characterizes the Halifax Country.

Miss Gerry leaves today for Miami, from which place she will motor to Belleair, where she will join a party of friends at the Belleview hotel.

Despite the chilly weather and a stiff breeze Mrs. Paul J. Stern, Miss Ida Wheaton and Cecil Gerrard, all of whom are guests of the Clarendon, took a motor trip to Ormond and other nearby points yesterday afternoon. Mr. Gerrard having obtained an open face "silver" for the trip.

George F. Johnson and C. Fred Johnson of the Endicott Johnson Shoe company are among the salt water, physical culture and fresh air enthusiasts of the Clarendon. Snapping each morning and then extending on the beach with the medicine ball, and they never miss a plunge in the surf, whether it rains or shines.

Mrs. James H. Ward and Miss Eleanor Ward of New York, wife and daughter of the vice president of the Bethlehem Steel company, arrived today at the Clarendon for the season. They are regular guests of the Clarendon and spend their summers at the Mount Washington hotel in Bretton Woods, N. H.

Employees of the Clarendon, who were guests of the employees of the Ormond hotel at a dance last Wednesday night, will return the compliment with a dance to be given at the Alhambra Inn Thursday night. Music for the occasion will be furnished by Earl Newberry's Exposition Band.

William Chase, assistant manager of the Ormond hotel, came down yesterday and took a look at the Clarendon hotel golf course. Mr. Chase is quite an expert golfer and intends to come back Thursday to see if he can't establish a new record for the hotel golf links.

SEASIDE INN

P. R. Nicholson and wife and E. Harley, who are making an extensive automobile tour of Florida and other states, spent the first part of the week at the Seaside Inn.

W. D. Allison, Miss Sara T. Leonard and Mrs. M. A. Leonard of Pittsburgh, have been spending several days at the Seaside Inn. Mr. Allison left yesterday for Washington, D. C., but the ladies of the party expect to remain several days at the hotel.

Miss K. R. Gremile, Miss Gypsy Port and Morton Port of Cincinnati, arrived last night at the Seaside Inn. They plan to spend the winter in the Triple Cities and will remain at the hotel until they find satisfactory apartments.

John C. Brown of Lachute, Mo., who represents a stove concern in Chicago and who includes Florida in his winter travels, is again registered at the Seaside Inn on his customary season trip.

C. H. Coles and wife and F. J. Newton and wife of Gainesville, Fla., are registered at the Seaside Inn for a short stay.

HOTEL DESPLAND

Automobile parties are arriving each day, stopping over for a few days to several weeks. Among these was a party from Montezuma, Ga., consisting of W. L. McKenzie, J. W. McKenzie, Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Glover and Mrs. Forrester, who stopped at the Despland for several days before continuing their trip further south.

Another party from Savannah was J. A. Grenner and wife, F. Romette and J. E. O'Brien and daughter, who are making an extensive trip throughout the state. Others registered are Mr. and Mrs. Scouler Slight of Chicago; Mrs. A. M. Morris of Lebanon, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Falley of Bridgeport, Conn.; W. A. Schaffer and wife of Fort Madison, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Driscoll of Haverstraw, N. Y.; G. Dunn of Boston; M. E. Gindoff of West Hoboken, N. J.; and M. J. Engel of New York.

PRINCESS ISSENA

Mrs. A. W. Plumb, a guest of the Princess Isseena for the winter season and who is occupying Cherokee cottage on the hotel grounds, was hostess at a very delightful luncheon and card party given at the Princess Isseena yesterday afternoon.

The luncheon was served in the excellent style which is characteristic of the Princess Isseena and elicited from the guests numerous congratulatory expressions for the hostess, and which the hostess, in turn, passed on to Manager Henry Haynes.

Mrs. Plumb had 22 guests for the afternoon and bridge was played at eight tables. The first prize, a desk lamp, was won by Mrs. J. W. Eringer. The second, book only, was won by Mrs. J. P. Esch, and the third, a mirror, was won by Miss Christie, a guest of the Princess Isseena.

Mrs. W. H. Workman, Mrs. H. I. Hanlon and Norman A. Workman, of Brooklyn, are guests of the Princess Isseena.

George Lehman and wife and George Leppert, of Newark, N. J., who have been spending sometime in Tampa, arrived at the Princess Isseena for a day and night and then left for a visit to Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burbeck of Cincinnati, who have been visiting Mr. Sherlock at Palm Beach, have returned to the Princess Isseena for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Foster, of Evansville, Ill., are again at the Princess Isseena for the winter. Mr. Foster, who is head of a big bottle manufacturing plant, is jokingly known among his friends as the "bottle king."

He and Mrs. Foster have been coming to the hotel for seven seasons and have many friends who are at ways glad to welcome them back.

The crown grounds of the Princess Isseena have been opened for the season and Manager Haynes announces that William Fletcher, of Patterson, N. J., will be the "professional" in charge.

PRINCE GEORGE

William H. King of New York, pocket billiard champion of the world, who, with his wife, Mrs. Bertha May King, woman billiard champion, has been spending a few days here, practiced each afternoon at the Prince George hotel and amazed the guests with his wonderful skill.

Mr. W. H. King, manager of the Prince George, who is somewhat of a billiard shooter himself, and several guests of the hotel, "took on" Mr. King for a few games yesterday afternoon. However, Mr. King's opponents were opponents in name only. He did practically all the shooting while they sat around and looked on, waiting for him to miss a shot. He seldom missed. Mr. King, who left today for other points in Florida, intends to give an exhibition at the Prince George, the Ridgewood and other places when he returns in about three weeks and it is probable his wife also will give a demonstration of her skill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McClure of Marcus Hook, Pa., have arrived at the Prince George for the season.

H. F. Galvin and family and John Villa of Atlanta, who are touring Florida, spent a short time at the Prince George before continuing their journey south.

Mrs. R. W. Owen and Mrs. J. T. Griffith of Owenboro, Ky., who have been spending a portion of the winter in New Orleans, made up their minds that the trip would not be complete unless they visited Daytona, so when they started home a few days ago they came here and registered at the Prince George. They had arranged to stay only two days and after they had been here only two days they had not arranged for a longer stay.

BRETTON INN

Among recent arrivals at the Bretton Inn are Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Smith, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dunham, Englewood, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, New York; and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Schaffner and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith, Greenwald, N. C.; W. F. Dwyer, W. F. Dwyer, C. W. Parker and L. C. Dwyer, all of Philadelphia, Pa.

The STEP on the STAIRS

"When his door had closed and he was out of the way I rushed up to see; I don't know what I said; I must have been crazed with jealousy and the mystery of it all. I do remember, though, quite distinctly, that he turned on me in a cold fury, forbade me ever to address her again, and entering her apartment, shut the door in my face. I descended, let myself in here almost mechanically, and dropped into that chair you're sitting in now, sergeant."

Craig was settling back in his chair, with a gesture to Barry, when he stepped forward.

"Mr. Ladd, as I understand it, you're here in a replica of the one just above, studio and all. Have you any objection to showing me about?"

"Not at all." In contrast to that of the dead woman's Ladd's studio was hung with rare tapestries and furnished as luxuriously as that of a royal dandy.

"I'll put the men on guard outside, so that they won't kick up a rumpus if they see him, like a modern Santa Claus, perambulating the fire escape with his white whiskers waving in the early morning breeze. That note simply asked him to get into the other apartments when he was sure the occupants were gone, and search for traces of a certain chemical compound."

"But we'd only just left Miss Shaw's apartment; we hadn't seen either Griswold or Ladd's then?" Craig exclaimed beneath his breath.

"You don't suspect her, John?" Barry smiled, but a trifle dryly.

Barry waited until the younger sergeant's footsteps had died away in the quiet night air and then turned to the guard.

"Doane, do you know who I am?" The patrolman nodded.

"All right," Barry broke in. "I take it that your orders tonight, Doane, are to keep guard outside the apartment here in which the woman was shot unless you hear any suspicious sound within, or see something which you think should be investigated, is that so?"

"Right, sir," Doane responded.

"Very good. You're going to see and hear something suspicious within five minutes, and that something is going to be me! Understand?"

"I don't sir," Doane replied. "But what you say goes, you mean you want to have another look around the place? I've orders not to let anybody in, but as long as you're taking the responsibility, the look is smashed and I can't see every shadow in this dark hall."

Barry pushed open the broken door, which swung drunkenly on its hinges, and entering the perfumed, littered living room, he found his way to the wall switch and turned on the opalescent lamps.

The little writing desk was open, its profusion of papers scattered on the floor, and the drawers of an almost priceless Chinese cabinet had been forced. Approaching the latter, Barry observed that its contents were mainly scraps of drawing paper on which tiny figures had been scrawled, each with a few deft lines, and picking one up he whistled softly.

It was a miniature caricature, cruel in its sharply defined character delineation of pompous goodnatured Theodore Vansittart, husband of the woman whose unfinished portrait stood on the easel in the studio, and glancing over the others Barry found like caricatures of several people prominent in the social and political life of the city.

He was turning away from the cabinet when he noticed something which it was obvious that the detectives had overlooked; a small compartment at the top, with a handle formed by a tiny red gold dragon, remained undisturbed.

Barry tucked at the little dragon but it was immovable; the single gift box above its snoutlike nose seemed to wink mockingly at the futility of his efforts. Something about that eye and the curious formation of its socket gave the sergeant a sudden inspiration, and taking a blunt pencil from his pocket he pressed sharply upon the globe of gilt as upon a bell button.

Instantly the dragon turned inward as upon a spring, the front of the compartment dropped forward on noiseless, unseen hinges and the interior of the small, secret space was exposed.

Mentally congratulating himself that Doane had elected to remain outside, Barry drew forth the contents of the compartment in both hands and carried it carefully to a small table.

What are we going upstairs again for? demanded Craig. "I've got to make my report at headquarters, and it's getting on toward morning."

"You're not going to raise up old Griswold again, then, and ask him if he lied about his acquaintance with Mrs. Vane?" Barry bent a quizzical glance upon the younger man.

VI

What are we going upstairs again for? demanded Craig. "I've got to make my report at headquarters, and it's getting on toward morning."

"You're not going to raise up old Griswold again, then, and ask him if he lied about his acquaintance with Mrs. Vane?" Barry bent a quizzical glance upon the younger man.

It was evident enough at last that somewhere beneath the hard, surface brilliancy and devilishly clever, bitter humor of the dead woman there had lurked a humanly sentimental regard for episodes in her life that had vanished from the sophisticated present, for there beneath his hands were clearly mementoes of the past, the foolish, faded objects meaningless to anyone else, which every woman treasures until memory ceases to have value.

A faded blue satin ribbon, stiff and yellowed at the edges, held a knot of crumbling brown sprigs which must once have been flowers; a torn scrap of real lace, discolored now, and too rich in quality for a graduation dress but it might have been a bit of a bridal veil or christening robe once upon a time; a lock of short, curling hair, matted and red-brown; a battered gold locket without initial or inscription; an empty cartridge of .44 caliber, and a small snapshot, alike faded and discolored and half torn across as though someone had started to destroy it and then thought better of it.

Taking up the faded snapshot he examined it closely. Its faint lines showed the figure of a tall, slender girl clad in a light-colored gown which made it stand out against what appeared to be a mass of shrubbery in full leaf. At her side and reaching to above her knee was a blurred object resembling a huge dog, but the outlines were so indistinct that its breed could not be determined.

The girl's slender figure did not resemble the splendid, sensuously full lines of the body of Mrs. Vane save in its height, and the face was an indistinguishable blur, but on a sudden inspiration Barry rose, still carrying the picture, and going into the studio he turned on the brilliant light within the reflector. Then he drew from his pocket a small but powerful microscope. It proved of little aid beyond showing that the blurred object by the girl's side was indeed a large dog, for the photograph was too worn and faded, but on the reverse side the distinction between the pencil marks and pen scratches was plainly visible, and three words written in a round, girlishly unformed hand were unmistakably revealed:

"Mopus would move."

Then, standing almost on the spot which the body of Miriam Vane had occupied in front of the easel, Barry used his microscope to scan every inch of the portrait with meticulous care.

Straightening at length with a very grave expression upon his boyish countenance, he switched off the glaring light in the reflector, leaving only the side brackets in the wall glowing softly, and crossing behind the portrait he passed the model throne and went to the row of windows.

When he raised the shade of one of them the empty house beyond the fire escape stood stark and ghastly, more distinctly than before and a grayish effulgence was spreading over the cloudy sky. The sultry summer dawn was at hand.

Dropping the shade once more, Barry turned and reflectively regarded the back of the portrait upon the easel. The huge square of canvas was blank except for some numbers scrawled in charcoal on the upper left hand corner and a small cross in red paint a little below the center.

For some minutes these singular characters occupied the close attention of the sergeant, then he turned off the last of the lights and left the studio, going directly to the outer hall without a second glance toward the boudoir and bedroom.

Big Doane, seated upon the lowest step of the staircase, rose hastily and saluted.

"One of the boys came up, sir, to find out about the light in that studio, but I fixed it with him," he remarked. "Did you find the answer to what was puzzling our sergeant?"

"I've found the answer to what was puzzling me, Doane," he replied. "I've stumbled on a bigger mystery yet and a blacker one."

He found at headquarters that Craig had already turned in his report, and the chief was awaiting his own appearance with ill-concealed impatience.

"What do you think?" the chief asked.

"As to the identity of the murderer," Barry asked, cautiously.

"I'm quite certain that several people who might conceivably have killed Mrs. Vane did not do it, and that lets me out for the moment. However, I took it upon myself to do a little unofficial investigating."

"Of course," said the chief, interrupting eagerly.

"The chief examined Barry's report, but from his account of the affair as well as the reports of the boys from the local precinct, and Boyle and Craig, it appears that the Vane woman was shot by some visitor, someone she knew well, and that she had no pretension of the attack.

There's one queer point about the murder that the press is bound to pounce on and play up big, and yet I can't see any explanation. I thought perhaps you might have some ideas."

"What is that, sir?" Barry's tone was guileless.

"There were no powder marks on the woman's smock and the medical examiner says that the shot must have been fired from a distance of several feet at least."

The chief paused. "Now according to Boyle's report, Professor Semionov stated that when you and he heard the sound of the shot and opened his door he heard footsteps on the stairs."

Sergeant Barry smiled.

"The professor and I have a slight difference of opinion about the direction of the sound of those footsteps, he believes that they were coming up, while I am quite as certain that they were descending," he said.

"However, that's not the main point. You are wrong, I think, sir, though not in the way you mean. That 'step on the stairs' had everything to do with the murder!"

"What?" The chief sprang from his chair.

"Has anyone given you a description yet of the portrait which Miriam Vane was painting when she met her death?" asked Barry.

"Only that it is a picture of Mrs. Theodore Vansittart."

"Coming down a staircase," Barry finished. "The THIRD STEP OF THE STAIRS is just on a level with the artist's breast as she sat on a stool before the easel, and there is a bullet hole in the canvas, Miriam Vane was shot through the heart by someone on the other side of the portrait!"

For a moment the chief seemed about to explode with the mingled emotions which consumed him. The next he sank back in his chair and raised his powerful hands, to let them fall with a slam upon his desk.

"A bullet hole through the portrait!" he exclaimed. "And none of those no-account flatfoot dicks, not even the medical examiner himself, had eyes to see it! The reporters would have smoked it out and had a fine laugh on the department if it hadn't been for you, John!"

"No woman deliberately destroys all signs of her former identity unless she has a secret to hide," said Barry. "and I am not certain that a previous tragedy was not linked in some fashion with her life. The shot which killed her was not the first to be involved in her destiny."

The ribbon, dried flowers, face, and the hair and the locket—why, I suppose every woman treasures just such things the world over," commented the chief. "That empty cartridge, though, it must have meant something mighty serious to her, and we've got to find out what that something is. The photograph is too faded to be of any use as evidence, and whatever was written on the back has been scratched out long ago."

"Look at it through this, sir," Barry showed his microscope. "The penciled words beneath the ink scrawl are 'Mopus would move.' Now, as I make it out, that refers to the blur beside the figure of the girl, which under the glass resolves itself into a large dog of some sort."

Barry laid the little packet of sketches before the chief and took his leave. It was broad daylight when he reached the street, and on reaching the antique shop found that a crowd had collected before its doors. Boyles temporary successor and the plainclothes men were sharply interrogating a surly individual who was in the act of unlocking the basement door.

At Barry's approach they greeted him and stepped aside.

"Are you the janitor of this building?" he asked.

"I am, Jacob Kedge, by name, and what business is it of yours?" the other replied truculently, eyeing the detective sergeant up and down.

"Come inside," Barry drew him within the entrance door, closing it upon the springing knot of curious sight-seers. "I'm from headquarters, in charge here with Sergeant Craig. I suppose you know that one of our tenants has been murdered?"

"I ought to!" Kedge ejaculated. "Your men have been badgering me ever since I got back. It's hard to believe her cold in death! Why it's scarcely twelve hours since I was talking to her!"

"Mrs. Vane, among the other tenants in the house," Barry remarked.

"Not that, Barry! I mean with the whiskers, but she sometimes spoke to the top floor tenant, Miss Shaw, when she passed her on the stairs. The young gentleman just above was fairly crazy about her, as you could see with half an eye, and Mrs. Vane and Mr. Griswold seemed to be old friends, from even before she came here."

"Indeed?" Barry smiled encouragingly. "It seems to me now that he said something about that last night when I interviewed him after Mrs. Vane's death was discovered. Didn't they come originally from the same city?"

"I don't know anything about that. All I know is that Mrs. Vane was American, for all she landed here from France, like that young Mr. Ladd, and she'd no more than got settled than she sent me upstairs with a note for Mr. Griswold, as far as you please. Surprised, he was too."

"Yes, he must have been pleased to find that charming neighbor was an old friend. Mrs. Vane's tone was guileless. 'The warrant he gave you a big tip.'"

"Tip?" The janitor's repetition was as expressive as an oath. "Well, when I gave him that note and he saw the writing on the envelope he jumped and got a little bit more green and then rubbed his chin and smiled in that slow way of his. At last he opened the note and read it, and then he told me, still smiling, to tell Mrs. Vane he would do his best to help her out."

"And did he call?" A trace of eagerness had crept into the sergeant's voice, and Kedge became suddenly wary.

"How should I know, sir? I delivered his message to Mrs. Vane, and then went about my business."

Barry rose, took him and ascended to the fifth floor.

Professor Semionov opened the door.

"Did you succeed, and the detective demanded eagerly."
